Nature-Reserve Seibertsbachtal
DLFF-0835

Friday January 28th started to another short trip. Had completely packed and moved directly from the work to the destination which was this time not too far away.

Nature-Reserve Seibertsbachtal DLFF-0835 is located between Mitterteich and Pechbrunn and on both sides very close to the fasttrack A93. Was there after a doctor-visit last week for shortly checking the possibilities and under the current snow and rain-situation only one position was possible for an activity however from RF-perspective not so ideal.

In the first attempt used my 3 band-windom to avoid too much outside-time. It was a bit warmer compared with my latest trip however 2 degrees and warmer is only relative. Finally this temperature composed with the very large humidity appeared colder than the last time and always some small rain-shower, snowfall and huge wind made it not better.

When turning on the radio and the first contact with my friend Karl DL1JJK at 1249 UTC the band appeared very silent. There was a sequence of stations then following and I thought that band will go up, however not comparable with last activities.

So after the first half hour with not so promising results had to take the decision either to stop or change something in the setup.

Of course decided for the second option and made an emergency change of antenna and cable.

After the 20 minutes outside-work it was now also a bit uncomfortable in the car, however finally added another 1,5 hours activity with cold feet.

After a visit on 20 meters showed back to 40 in CW and had there a nice run with a total of 76 contacts.

Not too many DX-stations this time, however at the end the final-result with 271 contacts was acceptable . 31 countries made it into the log.

1. Germany (75)
2. Italy (37)
3. Poland (29)
4. France (19)
5. Belgium (15)

Running also two mailing-lists for interested people:
